

Editorial Team Leader – Excellent Package & Career Development, London

Are you looking for a career development opportunity with real potential?

Our client is a rapidly expanding medical communications agency with substantial growth plans and this role represents an excellent opportunity to manage and develop an Editorial team on a day-to-day basis.

It is envisaged that this role will subsequently develop into an Editorial Director position and an Individual Development Plan will be agreed with the successful candidate.

A programme of change is already underway to ensure best practice within the organization. This complements the existing, high quality, innovative business model with clients among the top ten global pharmaceutical companies.

Reporting to the Managing Editor, to be successful in this role you will need

- Significant integrated medical communications agency experience
- Broad ranging and in depth Editorial, Strategic and Scientific expertise
- Strategic Publications Planning experience
- Excellent people management ability
- Outstanding organizational, influencing and communication skills
- A Life Sciences degree and PhD

If you would like to find out more on an informal, confidential basis please contact Anthony McKenna, FCIPD on 07968 181759 or email your details to anthony@encompasshr.com