

Senior Medical Writing Specialist

Gilead Sciences is a leading biopharmaceutical company whose mission is to advance the care of patients suffering from life-threatening diseases worldwide. Headquartered in Foster City, California, the company has expanded rapidly over the past two decades, with record annual revenues in 2009 exceeding $7 billion, operations spanning four continents, and a staff of approximately 4,000 employees.

An exciting and challenging opportunity has arisen to join the International Medical Writing team. The successful candidate will prepare a wide range of documents, including clinical study reports, investigator brochures, common technical document overviews/summaries, and paediatric investigation plans. They will participate in submission teams and regulatory project teams, providing advice and guidance for optimal presentation of data to achieve document objectives. They will work collaboratively with functional contributors (clinical, biometrics, etc.) ensuring all source data are appropriately reported in terms of accuracy, completeness, and scientific interpretation, and in accordance with project timelines.

It is envisaged that the successful candidate will be degree educated and have significant medical writing experience. Experience preparing a variety of document types (as listed above) is essential, including familiarity with Common Technical Document Sections 2.5 and 2.7. Experience preparing other documents for regulatory submission is desirable. Candidates must have excellent verbal and written communication skills, and have demonstrated ability to work in cross-functional teams.

The ideal candidate will align with the Gilead's core values by being accountable for their work, displaying integrity in everything they do, thriving in a team environment, and seeing excellence as the only measure of success.

This role is office-based in Cambridge in the UK.
